

Academic & Thesis Writing Workshops

JCU Townsville and Cairns Campuses, 2018

The Academic & Thesis Writing Workshops (ATWW) series provides practical and conceptual information on how academic writing works, and encourages you to put the techniques to use in your thesis, proposals and journal articles. Whatever your current stage of writing, there are benefits for anyone who wishes to attend.

In 2018, ATWW will run for six consecutive weeks in each series and will be video-linked from Townsville to the Cairns campus. At least one session will be conducted in Cairns and video-linked to Townsville. ATWW sessions are recorded. All notes, recordings and other relevant material will be uploaded to eGRS shortly after each session. PhD candidates who wish to undertake this series by viewing the videos (rather than attending in person) and have it count towards RD7003 Professional Development will need to prepare summaries of the information provided in the workshops to the convenor. Please contact Elizabeth.Tynan@jcu.edu.au for further details.

The ATWW series is open to all JCU postgraduate and Honours students in Townsville, Cairns and Singapore. Members of staff are warmly invited to attend as well. You should register through CareerHub to attend, including if you will be participating by viewing the videos. Registration assists the Convenor to ensure that suitable rooms are available, and to contact participants if there is a change of venue or time. Note that registration opens eight weeks before the first session in each series.

Important note for international research candidates: This six-week Academic & Thesis Writing Workshop series is separate to the SKIP Program \(Skills for International Postgraduates\). International research-only students in their first year of enrolment should register to undertake the SKIP Program. They are not required to attend the Academic & Thesis Writing Workshop series. However, international students in their later years who have completed the SKIP Program are most welcome to attend the Academic & Thesis Writing Workshops.

Please register to attend the Academic & Thesis Writing Workshops via CareerHub.
