Graduate Opportunities

JCU Law graduates are highly valued by the profession in our region, across Australia, and overseas.

Opportunities for employment of JCU Law graduates exist in a wide variety of areas. Common areas of legal practice include business and commercial law, environmental law, property law, criminal law, taxation law, corporate law, bankruptcy and insolvency, wills and estates, intellectual property law, anti-discrimination law, and family law.

In addition to traditional legal practice, there are many legal and quasi-legal roles in government, not-for-profit organisations, industry and business. In many of those roles, graduates are not required to be admitted as a lawyer or hold a practising certificate, it is the broad range of skills law graduates possess that is attractive to employers.

The top ten employers of JCU Law alumni listed on LinkedIn are:

Queensland Police Service, Queensland Health, Australian Taxation Office, Wilson/Ryan/Grose Lawyers, Townsville Community Legal Service Inc, MacDonnells Law, Grant Thornton Australia, Connolly Suthers Lawyers, Slater and Gordon Lawyers, Queensland Law Society

Specialisations

Solicitors – specialize in areas such as property, probate, workers compensation, family law, personal injuries litigation, commercial law or criminal law. Solicitors may work in private legal practices or in state, territory or federal government departments, in community law centres, not-for-profit organisations or within business corporations.

Barristers – provide legal advice and draft documents in complex matters. They plead cases before civil, criminal and industrial courts and other tribunals. Generally the barrister is briefed by the solicitor who instructs the barrister on behalf of the client. Barristers are self-employed but normally practice in chambers with other barristers.

Accreditation

Graduates of the JCU Bachelor of Laws satisfy the academic requirements for admission to practice law in Queensland and through the mutual recognition process, in all Australian states and territories. Completing your Law degree is the first step towards being admitted as a legal practitioner.

How to Become a Solicitor

To practice as a solicitor in Queensland requires four steps:

1. Completion of an approved law degree
2. Completion of an approved practical legal training (PLT) course or a supervised traineeship
3. Application for admission to the Roll of Lawyers
4. Application for a solicitor's practising certificate – this certificate is required to practise law in Queensland.

Further information is available at Queensland Law Society (Retrieved 16 September 2019).

How to Become a Barrister

Whilst the academic and admission requirements for barristers and solicitors are the same, to obtain a barrister's practising certificate in Queensland you will need to undertake further studies after you are admitted as a lawyer followed by one year of mentoring and supervision.

Further information is available at The Bar Association of Queensland (Retrieved 16 September 2019).

Future Proofing Yourself

According to the law profession futures expert Richard Susskind (susskind.com), the following two trends are effecting change in dispersing legal advice to commercial clients:

1. Drive to pay less for more, to pay for the results rather than the input (end of the “billable hour”, increasing focus on fixed-fee work) and pay only for tailored advice.

2. Automation: due to the pressures outlined in point one some of the more routine work can be automated and delivered 24/7 on a subscription basis thus still creating a stream of revenue.

This highlights the opportunities for lawyers who develop IT and project management skills allowing them to assume hybrid legal positions of the future, such as:

- Legal Technologists – lawyers with IT system management skills
- Legal Process Analysts – lawyers able to break down the legal process into components that can be transferred into an IT system
- Online Dispute Resolution Practitioners
- Legal Project Managers – who break down a legal process into various components, allocates them to various service providers, executes quality and ensures that it comes together at the end
- Legal Risk Managers
- Legal Management Consultants (R. Susskind, Tomorrow’s Lawyers, an Introduction to Your Future, Oxford University Press, 2017)

Job Opportunities and Employer Expectations

Online job boards, graduate recruitment directories, employer websites, Facebook pages, LinkedIn accounts and twitter feeds provide information on job opportunities and employer requirements and expectations.

It is important you work towards gaining the skills, knowledge and experience identified to ensure you are competitive when entering the graduate labour market.

- TDLA Townsville District Law Association
- FNQLA Far North Queensland Law Association

Membership benefits include: access to industry specific information and publications, career information and advice, and professional development including conferences, seminars and on-demand content.

Workplace Experience

Gaining career relevant experience before you graduate can improve your job prospects and help you stand out against other applicants.

Employers see evidence of your ability to apply the skills and knowledge gained through your study and you gain valuable insight into the type of job/field of employment you might enjoy.

In addition to the opportunities presented in your final year of Law through the WIL \(Work Integrated Learning\) program, including Clinical Legal Studies, Legal Placement, Advocacy and Criminal Sentencing, and the Multidisciplinary Project, it is recommended you actively seek further law related volunteer or paid opportunities.

Vacation Programs and Internships are generally offered by employers to students in the middle / final years of their degree. These programs may lead to graduate employment with the employer.

Volunteer work opportunities are listed on:

Graduate Programs

Graduate programs are paid structured professional development positions offered by large organisations or government departments, where successful applicants are offered on the job training and mentoring within the organisation.

The organisation generally recruits students in their final year of study for commencement in the following year. Applications open as early as March. Graduate programs are competitive so it is important to understand the recruitment criteria and work towards ensuring you have the skills, knowledge and experience expected.

Stand Out

Employers want to know you can offer more than your educational qualifications. Be proactive, get involved and stand out from the crowd.
