

Lecturer Biography

Tim Craske

Tim Craske BIO

Tim Craske is a geoscientist with over 35 years' experience in exploration in Australia, the Americas and East Africa. He has worked in technical leadership and management roles in 13 different countries across 6 continents.

Tim is a proven discoverer. He spent 20 years with WMC Resources and was involved in the discovery of during which he discovered the Ernest Henry and E1 iron oxide copper-gold (IOCG) deposits in the Cloncurry district, northwest Queensland. He was also involved in the targeting and acquisition of core tenements of the West Musgraves province for copper and nickel, leading to the discovery of Nebo-Babel Ni-S deposits.

Since leaving WMC Tim has worked in both the junior and major company sectors including Vale as General Manager Exploration Consulting and Iluka and Exploration Manager - New Commodities. He is currently an independent consultant.

Tim gained his first degree in geology from the Royal School of Mines, Imperial College London. He has honed his advanced thinking and coaching skills by completing a Master of NLP self-directed research into neuroscience and systems thinking and agile innovation. In 2014 he completed the GAICD qualification with the Australian Institute of Company Directors and served as a director in the not-for profit sectors as a board member of Australian Institute of Geoscientists from 2016-2018.

Timothy Craske - +61 (0)467 8576 912 | timcraske50@gmail.com

Formatted: Font color: Dark Blue

Formatted: Heading 1

Formatted: Font color: Dark Blue

Formatted: Heading 2

Formatted: Line spacing: single

Tim is currently principal consultant and director for Geowisdom Geological Consultancy and also Thinkercafé.org that specialises in developing innovative thinkers, thinking organisations, and disruptive technology solutions for mining, exploration and other Industries

~~Tim has excellent interpersonal and communication skills, with many years of counselling experience. He is an experienced conference speaker and chairperson, with a friendly and engaging style. He has an extensive business and social network throughout Australia, and overseas.~~